Editors' Note

We couldn't be more excited about our newest release. This special release highlights the work of narrative therapists in Brazil. Each article appears in both Portuguese and English and demonstrates the unique quality and character of the work by three narrative therapists in Brazil, Adriana Bellodi Cosar César, Adriana Müller, and Ana Luiza de Faro Novis. In addition to these practice-based articles, our colleague and beloved leader in narrative and dialogic practice in Brazil, Marilene Grandesso, has written a wonderful introduction to this special release, entitled, "Narrative Therapy in Brazil: Building Preferred Stories from North to South" which tells the story of the history and present of narrative therapy in Brazil.

Since this release appears in both Portuguese and English the formatting is a little different from past releases. Each article will appear first in Portuguese and then the translated version will appear in English. We want to acknowledge Isa Carvalho who served as the translator for this special release. Thank you for your meticulous attention to detail and for your talent in translating both the content and the spirit of the articles from their original Portuguese to English.

Read on! You are in for a treat.

Kindly,

Tom Stone Carlson, Ph.D.
